Electronically Filed
Docket: 24-CCB-0232
Filing Date: 06/26/2025 04:31:11 AM EDT

Once again, the claimant continues to reference digital files that were shared informally during discovery but have not been officially entered into evidence with the Copyright Claims Board (CCB). These files were shared in the spirit of transparency; however, shortly after receipt, the claimant raised concerns about their authenticity.

At that time, we made clear that the claimant was free to handle the files as he saw fit. These discussions took place prior to the discovery phone conference.

Importantly, during the discovery dispute phone conference, it was the respondents, not the claimant, who raised concerns related to these files. The Board stated that third-party forensic testimony would not be permitted. At the end of this discussion, both the claimant and respondents clearly expressed on the phone that we were not interested in pursuing any forensic analysis of the files. This was our final discussion on the matter.

Despite this, the claimant continues—repeatedly—to reference these digital files as though they support his position, when in fact they have no standing in this matter. The respondents have not submitted these files to the Board as evidence, nor do we rely on them to support our claims or defenses. Moreover, we must note that such files, in the possession of either party or any third party, are subject to manipulation and therefore do not constitute credible or reliable evidence.

To reiterate: these files are not in evidence, and they play no role in our defense. The Board should consider this ongoing fixation on irrelevant materials as an attempt to distract from the actual evidence—including documents the claimant himself submitted—which support our position and directly rebut his allegations of copyright infringement.

Regarding the Letter of Engagement and Termination letters, the claimant's continued disputes are without merit. These documents were officially emailed to us by prior legal representation and remain on file with The Myers Law Group. Specifically, they were emailed to us on March 21, 2025, by:

These documents were formally submitted into evidence with the CCB. We invite the Board to contact The Myers Law Group directly using the information provided to confirm the authenticity and official transmission of this evidence.

Lastly, it is notable—and unfortunate—that the claimant continues to pursue these baseless arguments while disregarding his own recent documented attempts at extortion, which we have previously submitted with the CCB.

I respectfully offer my personal apology to the Board for the continued expenditure of time on matters that should no longer require attention.

Sincerely,

Raymond Harper
