Hi Patrick -

Sorry this is so belated! After recovering from the summer flu or whatever it was, I had another film project to finish up & get out - I will be sending you the contract & a fresh copy of "On the Trail of Jack Thorp" within the next day or two - hope all is well with you!

best wishes
Susan

Hi Patrick,

Thanks! I have never put the Thorp film on blu ray - would this give a better quality than the Verbatim DVD-R inkjet printable that I've been using?

I have no idea how strong the university market will be for the film but we reach about 1000 colleges and universities (acquisitions specialists, professors, departments), and I think we should give it a try. All I would need from you is best quality dvd that we can duplicate. Our work is top notch as you have probably seen on our website. I have attached a contract letter for your review. Just print, sign and return a copy at your convenience and we can get started.

Hi Patrick - Thanks for writing! I would be delighted if you could help market the Thorp film. I recently put it online on Vimeo & have contacted cowboy singer Don Edwards (he was in a Robert Redford film & is interviewed & sings at length in the Thorp film) about the use of his music & marketing the film. (I knew that if I ever hoped to market it, I would need Don's agreement, the music is so integral.)

It's exciting to think that Jack might still have some life left after all these years, so let me know what you need from me to make this happen. I'm in the process of finalizing another documentary - one about a 1962 psilocybin experiment that Tim Leary helped with. It includes interviews with Ram Dass & others of the old Leary Harvard crowd - it was a lot of fun & hopefully the finished product will get some film festival traction. Not quite ready to submit it to festivals but almost there...

I will send you a private Vimeo link to the Thorp film in a separate email.

best wishes,
Susan

Over the years we have done a nice distribution biz with colleges and universities. (educational distribution). I always loved what you did with Jack Thorp and I puilled it out after all these years and it still looks great. Out opinion is that the film is licenseable to the edu market and we have buyers for it available. Let me know if this can interest you. Not the big bucks of the world but just the same ....good work going to good places. Over the years I have sold our Warhol Series to well over 500 colleges around the world. That got us started on the university trail, thanks to a good friend who suggested that market.
