Mr. Madriles, I'm writing to you to ask for consent to use evidence not previously submitted in our ongoing CCB proceeding. The CCB has an option for this but also requires I state whether there is consent from the opposing party to include the evidence not previously submitted. This is my attempt to obtain your consent.

On June 16, you filed, under certification and penalty of perjury, three invoices that you represented as being Eleven Public Affairs subscriptions. This appears to be inaccurate because the Storyblocks invoice is made out to Dymond Media, not Eleven Public Affairs. A simple copy and paste of the entire document shows this information, despite the black box that poses as a redaction.

I am looking to include your linktree and Dymond Media website in the evidence. Please respond no later than 6p on Monday, July 6th, 2026. A non-response will be treated as a "no" from you. Regardless of your consent or not, I am filing the request with the CCB. Links to proposed evidence are below.

Linktree: https://linktr.ee/carlosmadriles
Dymond Media: https://dymondmedia.com

Ben,

I received your message. I do not consent to the introduction of additional evidence at this stage of the proceeding.

For the record, your description of the Storyblocks invoice is inaccurate. The invoice is billed to Carlos Madriles, not to Dymond Media. "Dymond Media" appears only in my email address. I own both Eleven Public Affairs and Dymond Media, and any questions regarding the invoice I will address directly with the Board.

If you file a request with the Board, I will respond there.

Carlos Madriles
Eleven Public Affairs
