Terms of Use specify use in Second Life™ not permitted

Terms of Use:

Restricted license to use only in digital artwork to those who have purchased the file.
Not to be redistributed as a stock or premade source in any way or sold as wings in any virtual platform such as Second Life™, Inworldz, Kitely and others. Redistribution also means please don't offer the work you've done with my stock to a third party to make another derivative from without my permission and most certainly without credit.

Please make art with these, for example don't just change the colors and then offer it as a print or stock where the wings are the primary focus without much else. The artwork created with this content must be creative and transformative, and this content must be used as part of a larger work – for example, if all you do to change it is alter the colors, or put them on a different background that is not transformative and not proper use of this stock and would be considered redistribution. An example of the proper use would be to edit the wings onto a photo of a bee, or a woman.

Full credit to either Fancy Fairy Wings & Things, FancyFairy.com OR the social media account ID I am using on the platform the work is being posted on must always be given when posting work containing these files and a link back to me whenever possible. For example, if posted on DeviantArt.com, then credit to FaeryAzarelle is acceptable, as is credit to fancyfairyangela if posted on Instagram, and so on.
If these rules are not followed, you may have your license to use this stock revoked and your content removed.

You may use this in art created to sell as prints as long as I am credited on the item's sale page, but if the quantity sold will be more than 1,000 copies please contact me to arrange for a commercial licensing agreement.

Please also contact me first for permission if you want these for any commercial use, such as on a book cover to be published and distributed to stores, event fliers, etc. It is otherwise not allowed unless approved by me.
