New comment from Katz Republic on My Titania Fairy Wings Infringed Again in Second Life by Full Perm Store:

I feel that I have to respect to this post. I've been silent on the matter until this point. But I do feel that you have manipulated this scenario to suit yourself.
I didn't say anything to you because I didn't copy or use your design. Nor did I use your stock images in any way, shape or form in SL. If I had a bad reaction to your accusations or if any of my customers did it was purely out of shock. You upset my customers and I don't understand why you would threaten them when they bought my items in good faith and per my TOS, they have the license to use my work. Being falsely accused of the that you didn't do doesn't get a good reaction from anyone. When I saw your wings on the marketplace I couldn't even see any similarities from the picture in your ad. So yes, from what I saw I truly felt that you had some kind of problems. I was not familiar with your work whatsoever. So honestly why would I contact you about what I still feel is a mistake on your part? I was enraged that you were claiming that my mesh was copied from you and I had never seen your wings. But instead of reaching out to me you went to innocent customers demanding that they take down items they made with my mesh. I feel that you should have addressed me directly. They are not accountable for items they didn't upload or create. Please familiarize yourself better with Linden Labs DMCA policies.
You insinuated that I would not be honest in my counter against you. Let me put it straight. Linden Labs already have all of my information. I've had to file taxes on my income in there. I run my business legitimately and have paid what I owe. Perhaps you aren't familiar with the tax laws or pay no attention to them. I would not be foolish enough to give them false information and I have no reason to.
I also feel that you are being misleading when you say a friend gave you that group notice. You don't admit to joining my group for nefarious reasons and you got the notice yourself. I don't make clothes and you don't have any reason to be in my group. My group has very talented and creative people in it who do a wide variety of works. You just make wings, which I don't even sell as a stand alone item. So no, I don't want you in my group and I don't like dishonesty, so I had you thrown out. You're not a regular customer so why did you join?
Also as far as someone telling you where they bought the item in question it's just as easy to inspect the object to find out which the creator is.
I would also like to ask you kindly to remove my texture from this site. You're leaving me wide open for theft and I would like you to at least watermark it so it can't be easily stolen. I own the IP rights to that texture. And you don't have the permission to post it publicly. Please follow the laws that you claim other people violate. And that you are so very verbal about protecting.
I would also like you to remove my city and state from your post. That's considered doxing and it's not allowed. It's also against Linden Labs Community Standards. Inside or outside of Second Life.
Thank you in advance for your cooperation.
*Very curious to see if you let this get posted. *

Notecard: IP Infringement of Titania Fairy Wings in your SL items

Description: 2026-06-10 19:07:47 note card

Hi Xanthe,

I've discovered that several of your items use my Titania fairy wings design as the wings on the mesh characters, without my permission.
My original work, Titania Fairy Wings, US Copyright Registration # VA 2-020-456. This link shows the wings on my old website in October 2007:
https://web.archive.org/web/20071012233520/http://www.fancyfairy.com/titaniawings.html

I've also sold this design for years in SL as seen here:
https://marketplace.secondlife.com/p/New-Titania-Scripted-Fairy-Wings-Apricot/2023397 They were created in-world in 2007 as well but the oldest versions were removed from MP in favor of updated versions. The latest version is here:
https://marketplace.secondlife.com/p/Fancy-Fairy-Titania-30-Essentials-BOM-layer-pack/28304723

Please remove or replace the wings from the following items in world and on Marketplace:

Enchanted Wood - Woodland Wildflower Fairies and Enchanted Wood - Woodland Wildflower Fairies & Lantern Branch

Enchanted Fantasy - Fairy Dreams - Feline Fae

Fairy Spirit Sprite - Starlight and Fairy Spirit Sprite - Midnight

Spiritwood - Fairy Spirit Sprite

Thanksgiving Pixie Set 1
Thanksgiving Pixie Set 2
Pilgrim Pixie Set 1
Pilgrim Pixie Set 2

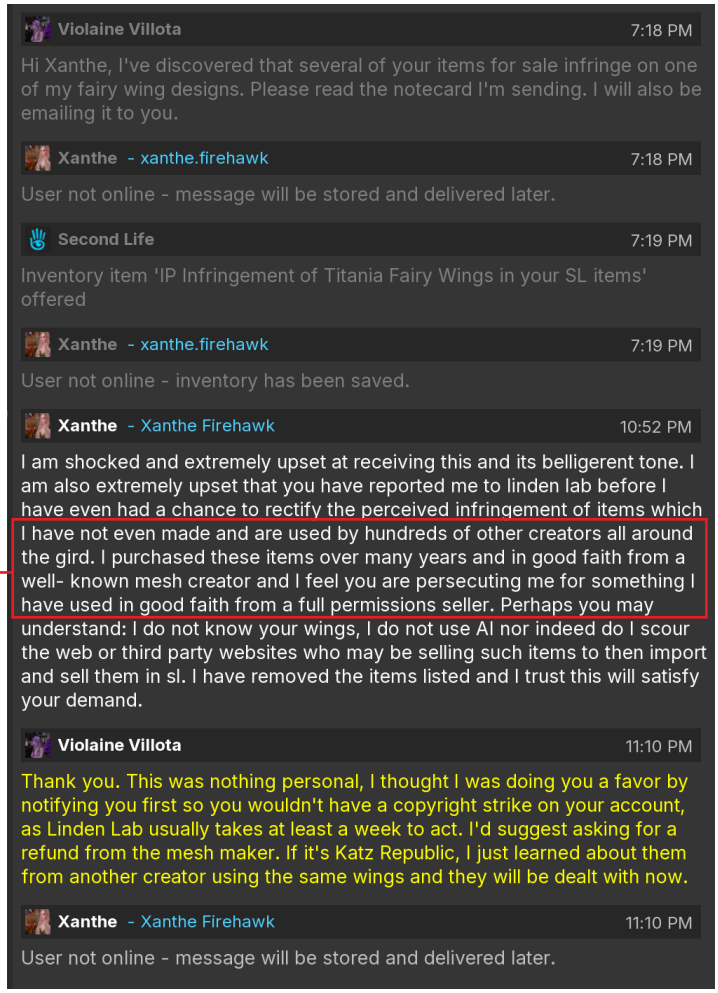

There is an additional item that was sold at the latest Enchantment event in May that had a hummingbird with the wings, please remove that item as well if it is being sold somewhere.

I understand that you may have come across one of my wing photos online from third party websites, falsely distributing it as free to use, but I have never given permission for my wing designs to be used in Second Life as wings to wear or as wings on characters being sold.
I've reported all items to Linden Lab, however I hope that you will address this before they act on it.

Sincerely,
Violaine Villota

I am shocked and extremely upset at receiving this and its belligerent tone. I am also extremely upset that you have reported me to linden lab before I have even had a chance to rectify the perceived infringement of items which I have not even made and are used by hundreds of other creators all around the gird. I purchased these items over many years and in good faith from a well- known mesh creator and I feel you are persecuting me for something I have used in good faith from a full permissions seller. Perhaps you may understand: I do not know your wings, I do not use AI nor indeed do I scour the web or third party websites who may be selling such items to then import and sell them in sl. I have removed the items listed and I trust this will satisfy your demand.

Violaine Villota 11:10 PM
Thank you. This was nothing personal, I thought I was doing you a favor by notifying you first so you wouldn't have a copyright strike on your account, as Linden Lab usually takes at least a week to act. I'd suggest asking for a refund from the mesh maker. If it's Katz Republic, I just learned about them from another creator using the same wings and they will be dealt with now.

(Saved Wed Jun 10 19:37:26 2026)I bought those from a full perm person here in sl would you like the name of the person who is selling them for others to use?
(Saved Wed Jun 10 19:40:04 2026)Katz Republic she is a seller for full perm items, meaning many more then just me have thiese items

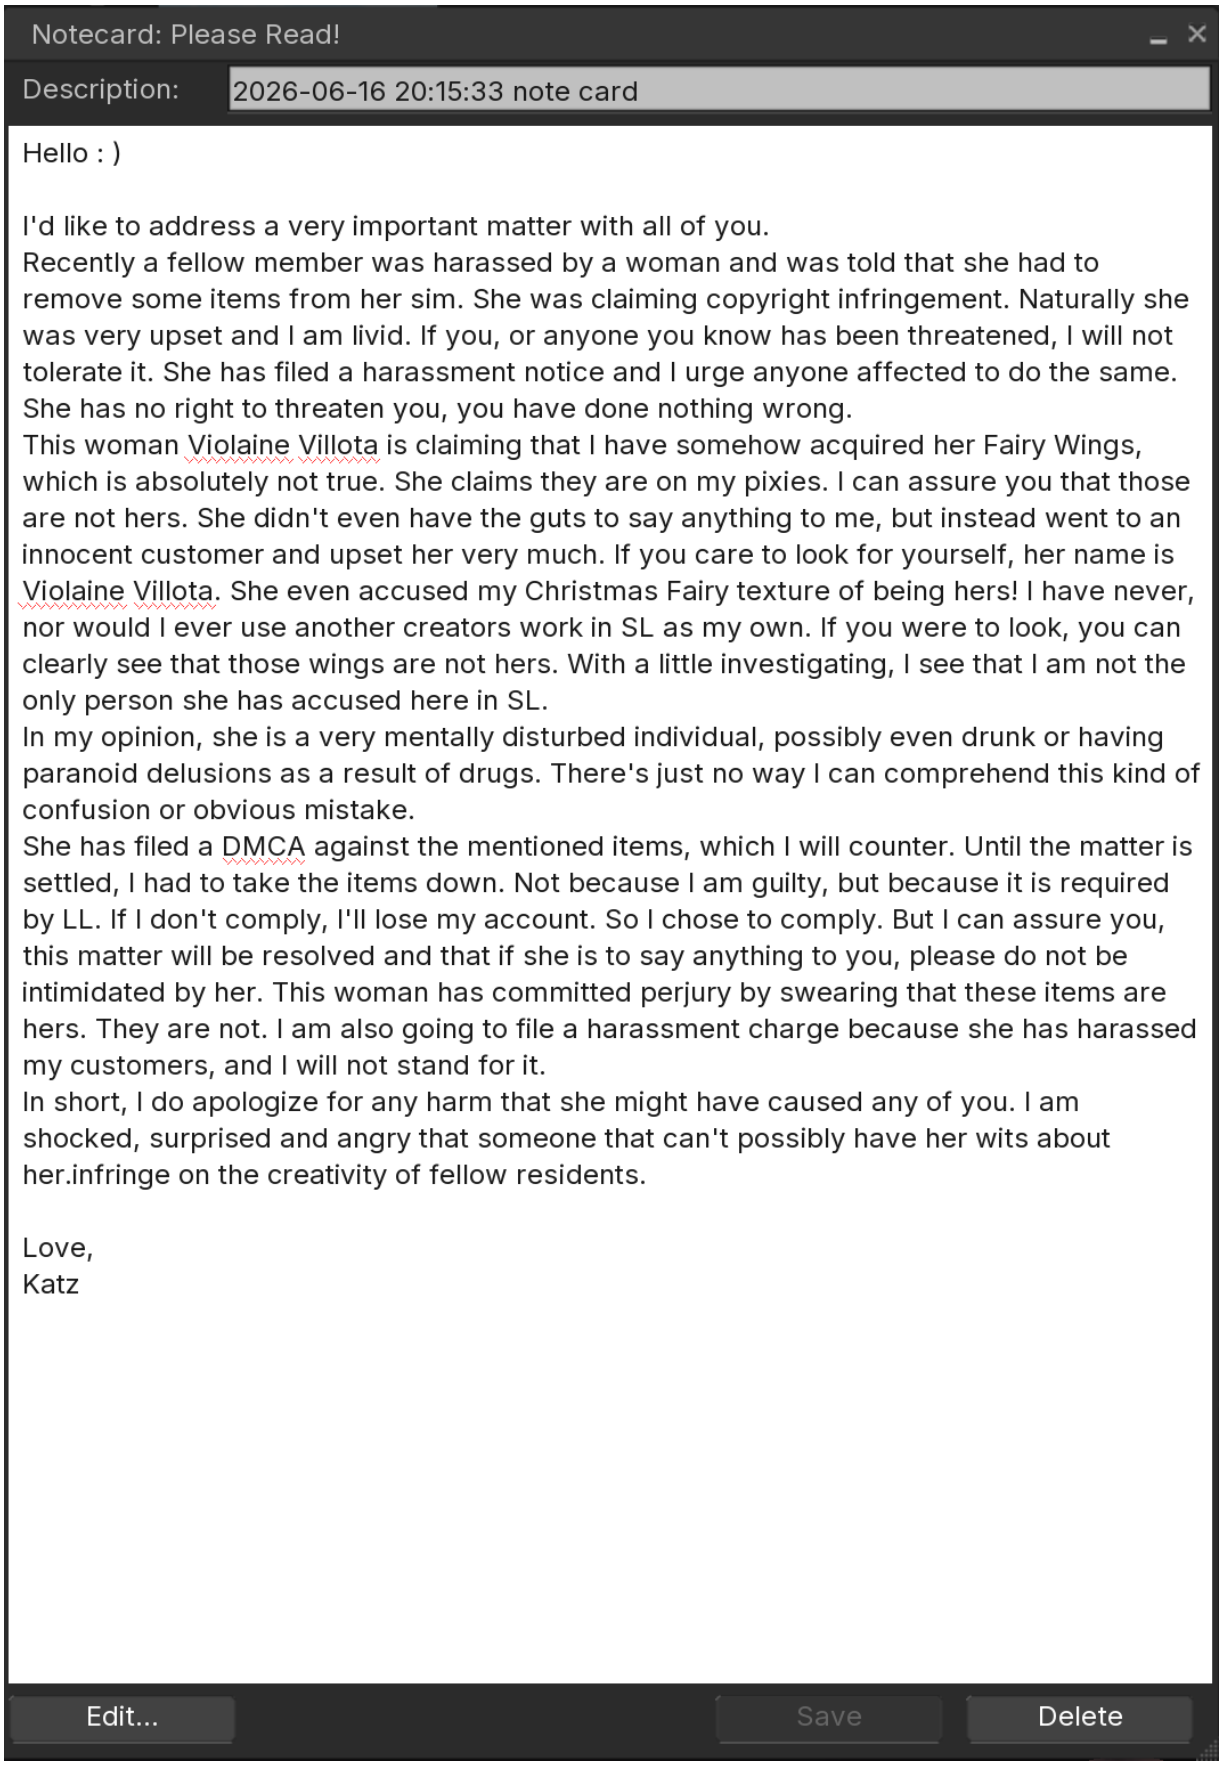

Violaine Villota 2026/06/10 9:51 PM
Thanks for giving me the name, they definitely had no right to sell that and you deserve your money back.

Nola Hellershanks 2026/06/10 9:51 PM you are very welcome, I know I won't get it back but sad people have to take from others and resell like that. Thank you for letting me know they have been removed

I appreciate that very much! Thank you.

Hello :)

I'd like to address a very important matter with all of you.
Recently a fellow member was harassed by a woman and was told that she had to remove some items from her sim. She was claiming copyright infringement. Naturally she was very upset and I am livid. If you, or anyone you know has been threatened, I will not tolerate it. She has filed a harassment notice and I urge anyone affected to do the same. She has no right to threaten you, you have done nothing wrong.
This woman Violaine Villota is claiming that I have somehow acquired her Fairy Wings, which is absolutely not true. She claims they are on my pixies. I can assure you that those are not hers. She didn't even have the guts to say anything to me, but instead went to an innocent customer and upset her very much. If you care to look for yourself, her name is Violaine Villota. She even accused my Christmas Fairy texture of being hers! I have never, nor would I ever use another creators work in SL as my own. If you were to look, you can clearly see that those wings are not hers. With a little investigating, I see that I am not the only person she has accused here in SL.
In my opinion, she is a very mentally disturbed individual, possibly even drunk or having paranoid delusions as a result of drugs. There's just no way I can comprehend this kind of confusion or obvious mistake.
She has filed a DMCA against the mentioned items, which I will counter. Until the matter is settled, I had to take the items down. Not because I am guilty, but because it is required by LL. If I don't comply, I'll lose my account. So I chose to comply. But I can assure you, this matter will be resolved and that if she is to say anything to you, please do not be intimidated by her. This woman has committed perjury by swearing that these items are hers. They are not. I am also going to file a harassment charge because she has harassed my customers, and I will not stand for it.
In short, I do apologize for any harm that she might have caused any of you. I am shocked, surprised and angry that someone that can't possibly have her wits about her.infringe on the creativity of fellow residents.

Love,
Katz

You aren't alone in the treatment from Katz. I write scripts (programs) in Second Life, more than one of which was at one point licensed to Katz Republic for use in her own creations and required next owner permissions changes to either copy only or transfer only. She failed to do so and when I approached her about it she instead wanted the ability to resell them wholesale asking me how much she had to pay to do so. She was told there was no fixed price for such and then offered 10% of the profit from the sale of any item using such scripts. I was moving irl at the time and rather than fight about it I agreed so long as the license included with those products also indicated that her customers had to change the script permissions before distributing any products containing them. I was patient, I reminded her about it every couple weeks or so for over a year during which time I noticed that some of the vendors that had items including copy/trans versions of my scripts were giving me less than 10% of the profit from their sale, some didn't provide me with any compensation at all!

I confronted her about this, again trying to be polite and let her know she had already had over a year to get in compliance with the revised license and was told that I was extorting her for money. I then reminded her that the 10% of profit on each sale of items containing my scripts was something she had offered at the time she renegotiated the license and that was in no way able to be construed as extortion when I was only requesting her to abide by the terms she herself had renegotiated and she herself had offered in regards to compensation. At that point she was given a time frame of 30 days to get things in compliance with the terms or I would bring a DMCA takedown request.

Certified Lunasea 9/3/26, 9:00 PM

Suffice to say I filed the request. Linden Lab failed to take anything down within a timely fashion, opting instead to wait the full 10 days and after getting a response on the 10th day from Katz Republic. They took down only items she failed to counterclaim on (I assume due to her own oversight while writing her response). Her counterclaim stated that my DMCA wasn't valid since what I was claiming against was not her products but my scripting code (which she failed to realise can be copyrighted as a written work). This now meant that I would need a lawyer able to practice law in her home state to bring the suit in her own home jurisdiction as per the DMCA.

Unfortunately the time given to do so, and my own funds being sparse due to my disabled status meant she was going to get away with it in my case. So I banned her in all groups and lands for which I had the ability to do so, blacklisted her in my vendor system of choice, and then blocked her to prevent her from being able to obtain any other products of mine in the future either in SL or on the Second Life Marketplace. I also upgraded the scripts to provide

I also upgraded the scripts to provide even more functionality than before knowing she would never get those upgrades.

I also found that she and her partner frequently obtain meshes from stock model sites for use in SL (often after decimating the model, keeping the UV and primary structure remind the same). I reported this to both Turbo Squid and CG Trader though I doubt anything came of it.
